

Georgeta Popovici is MD, MSc, expert consultant at National School of Public Health, Management and Professional Development, Bucharest, Romania.

She has a Master degree in Management of Social and Health Services and graduated courses in management of hospital services, quality management of healthcare services, patient safety and risk management, health promotion and disease prevention.

She worked as project manager in the World Mental Health Survey – the Romanian component (2005-2007) and as project manager or expert in other international or national projects on different topics, such as improving hospital processes, improving TB control, infant mortality, elderly care. She has a long experience as a trainer within management courses. She wrote as an author/coauthor around 20 articles.